EARLY HISTORY OF HICKS FAMILY

AS TAKEN FROM BARTON GENEALOGY, pp. 189-190.

John Hicks of Tortueth, County Gloucester, England, was a lineal descendant of Sir Ellis Hicks, who was made a Knight Baronette on the field of Poitiers in 1350 by Edward III, the Black Prince. John (1) Hicks died in 1492. Thomas (2) married Margaret Atwood and died in 1565. Baptist (3) born 1526 married Mary, daughter of James Everard Esq. James (4), born 1550, married Phoebe, daughter of Rev. Ephraim Allyn. Robert (5), born 1580, died March 2, 1617, married first Elizabeth, daughter of John Morgan, by whom he had sons, - Thomas and John. Robert married second, Margaret Winslow; her parentage is not known, but it is thought she was related to Edward and John Winslow. They had six children: Elizabeth, Ephraim, Samuel, Lydia, Daniel and Phoebe.

Robert Hicks, a merchant (leather dresser) of Burnesslesey Street, Southwark, London, England, came to Plymouth Colony in the ship, Fortune, 1621. His wife, Margaret (Winslow) Hicks with her six children came in Ann in 1623.

Elizabeth (2) married John Dickarson of Plymouth and died before July 10, 1651.

Ephraim (2) married September 13, 1649 Elizabeth, daughter of Pilgrim John Howland; he died in three months and she married, second, July 10, 1651, John Dickarson.

Samuel (2) married 1645 Lydia, daughter of Deacon John Doane of Plymouth. The History of Scituate says this Samuel was a deputy from Nauset (Eastham) 1647. He lived at Barnstable until 1670, then removed to Yarmouth and finally to Dartmouth, Mass.

Lydia married, after 1627, Edward Bangs of Plymouth.

Daniel of Scituate, according to Colonial Records and Davis married September 19, 1657 Elizabeth Hawmore, but Savage's Genealogical Dictionary of New England says he married September, 1659, Rebecca Hawmur.

Phoebe married 1635 George Watson of Plymouth, born 1602 and he died January 31, 1689. She died May 22, 1663.

Thomas (2) son of Robert (1) and Elizabeth (Morgan) Hicks succeeded to his father's business as leather dresser in London, England.

His brother, John (2) entered college and studied law; later, he followed his father to New England and was known as being in Rhode Island in 1641, later going to Newton, I. I., and finally settled at Hempstead as early as 1664. He married, first Herodias Long; second, Rachel Starr of Scituate. He died 1672.

EARLY HISTORY OF HICKS FAMILY

Through John (2), Thomas (3), Jacob (4), John (5) and first wife, Martha Smith, we come to Elias (6) Hicks, the Quaker preacher, who was certainly known and read of all men in this section of the country. There is a book called "Life of Elias Hicks". Robert (1) Hicks, properly of the Pilgrim Party, left at his death, March 24, 1647, a document which embraces the peculiarities of religious belief as exemplified by the Hicksite Quakers.

Robert (1) Hicks had brothers, - John, Ephraim, Samuel, James and Thomas (1), who came to Plymouth in 1624 and married Margaret, daughter of Zachariah West; he was in Scituate, Mass. 1640, died there 1653.

Robert (1) also owned land in Scituate, but probably lived in Plymouth.

Thomas (1) and Margaret (West) Hicks had two sons: Zachariah (2) born 1628, died August 5, 1702, married October 28, 1652, Elizabeth, daughter of John Gills, Cambridge, Mass. She was born 1636, died April 28, 1654. Daniel (2) died 1694, in Swansea, Mass., married September, 1659, Rebecca Hammur. *There seems to be a difference of opinion as to Elizabeth Hammore or Rebecca Hammur. Are they two different people and did one marry Daniel, son of Robert (1) and the other, Daniel, son of Thomas (1) Hicks? This seems to be one of the puzzles of history. J. J. C. B.

Robert (1) Hicks had sons: Stephen (2), Ephraim (2), Samuel, Robert, Thomas, John. Stephen (2) is said to have married Margaret Winslow (as was also said of his father) and had a son, Samuel. Ephraim (2) died without issue. Samuel married Lydia, daughter of Deacon John Doane. Robert (2) - *I have nothing on him. John (2) - * You agree with my notes. Samuel (2) and Lydia had Samuel (3), born 1651. Thomas (3) married Mary Albro, daughter of John of Portsmouth, R. I. also three daughters. Thomas (3) and Mary had Samuel (4) married Susan Anthony in 1702, Portsmouth, R. I., Thomas (4), Ephraim (4) three daughters. Samuel (4) and Susan had Samuel (5) born 1704, married, first Mary Mumford, second, Susanna, and had children.

REHOBOTH

Old Swamp Church (at Rehoboth) - one of elders had Deacon Hix on list of Deacons previous to 1805.

ANNALS AND RECORDS, HISTORY OF REHOBOTH, Newberry Library, Chicago --

p. 93 gives William Carpenter, 1735, as founding town of Rehoboth, Mass. Also in list below gives: Richard Martin, John Martin, Joseph Carpenter, proprietor, not inhabitant, lived at Swansea, Benjamin Carpenter, also prop., Leprilete (a name at Attleborough)

p. 291. - "The Stevens Corner Cemetery"

This yard is in North Rehoboth on the road leading to Rehoboth Village (Annawan St.) and is in the care of the Stevens Corner Association, Mrs. Albert R. Lewis, Secretary. Only one lot is under perpetual care. There is great need of funds for putting and keeping in order this interesting old yard. Mr. Charles F. Wilmarth is caretaker. More than 700 bodies are buried here, with very few expensive stones. Some of the more distinguished names are:

Amos Round, Rev. Sol.

John Round, Rev. Sol.

Nathan Hicks, Patriot of the Revolution, died 1845, aged 84 years.

Etc. - Many interesting epitaphs here, many unmarked graves.

A little farther down the road is a small family graveyard in which a tomb was built in 1846 by Eneas Round.

The Hix Cemetery

Elder John Hix.

Also son, Elder Jacob Hix. It is a part of old Hix Homestead. Located back from the road leading westward from Old Swamp Schoolhouse, now Brook St.

Rehoboth Antiquarian Society held 250th Anniversary of Town in 1894.

Original Contributors to Memorial Hall, 1886 included Nathan E. Hicks.

Samuel

as in will of 10, Jan. 1652.

Daniel Hicks, Scituate, s. of Thos. of same, married in 1657, Eliz. Haumore (says Colonial Rec. 19) and another rec. says m. Sept. 19, 1659, Rebecca, dau. of John Haumer (Dean's) of Scituate. The latter seems to be correct.
See Genealogical Dictionary of First Settlers of New England.

Thomas Hicks from Plymouth was in Scituate in 1640. He was probably bro. of Robert and came in ship Ann in 1623. His house lot was northeast of Hickes's Swamp, a well known place a mile south of the Harbour. Daniel Hicks, son, succeeded him and married Rebecca, d. of John Haumer, 1659. In 1652, Thomas Hicks died and his aged widow, being unable to attend court, Mr. Hatherly was authorized to take evidence of his will, his inventory, etc. This family came from Bermondsey St., Southwark, London.

From Dean's HISTORY OF SCITUATE

Thos. Hick's will signed by his mark Jan. 10, 1652
(a deathbed will evidently). His wife, Margaret, Executrix - to sons, Zachariah, Daniel and Samuel. Inventory by William Woodward and Wm. Brooks. Ant. S 18 2 s. His widow, Margaret, took oath to it Oct. 3, 1653.

Also from Dean's.

THE HISTORY OF THE
CITY OF BOSTON

From its first settlement in 1630 to the present time
The city of Boston was founded by a group of Puritan settlers who came to the New World in search of a better life. They were led by John Winthrop, who gave the city its name. The city grew rapidly and became one of the most important cities in the colonies. It was the center of the American Revolution and the birthplace of many of the nation's leaders. The city has a rich history and many interesting landmarks. It is a beautiful city with many parks and a great harbor. The city is a great place to live and visit. It has a lot to offer everyone.

THE PIONEERS

The following is a story of pioneer life in America as told to John Dale Wilkinson by his Grandmother, Harriet Irena Hicks Dale. The story is of her father's (George W. Hick's) family and their moving into the unexplored west.

"Thomas Hicks of Bermondsey Street, London, England, who came to this country in 1623 in the ship Ann, settled in Massachusetts. He was the ancestor of my Great Grandfather, George W. Hicks, born in 1795 at North Rehoboth, Mass. who was the son of Nathan Hicks, a soldier of the American Revolution.

"When about twenty years of age, he went to help his married brother, Nathan, clear up his farm located in western New York, near Canandaigua. During his stay of several years he saved up some money and came west to Indiana in the spring of 1823. He remained there until the sale of Government land at Indianapolis and bought 160 acres lying about three-fourths of a mile west of the Wabash River, on which, in 1827 the town of Perrysville was located. Mr. James Blair, a revolutionary soldier, named the town after Commodore Perry, whom he fought under on Lake Champlain.

"After my Great Grandfather bought the land, he went back to his brother's in New York State and in the fall of 1823 married Mary Curtis of Allen's Hill, New York. Her brother, Amos Curtis, married about the same time and being much enthused over the new western country, the two young married couples fitted up two large covered wagons with household supplies and clothing, and with two teams of good strong horses they started out on their journey for the great undeveloped west.

"As they went on their way they camped at nights by some small stream where they sometimes caught fish for their evening meal and had water for their horses and cooking. They killed wild game along the way and probably enjoyed the journey in the beautiful Indiana summer, never dreaming of paved roads, automobiles or traffic cops. One of the horses became sick and died so they fastened one wagon behind the other and let the three horses pull the two wagons the rest of the way. They arrived safely without any trouble with the Indians.

The following is a list of the names of the persons who have been elected to the office of the Secretary of the Association for the year 1900. The names are given in alphabetical order.

"Indianapolis at this time was just a few houses and Crawfordsville where they bought some corn was just three log cabins. They came on to Clinton, Indiana where Mos Curtis bought a farm. The wives stayed in Clinton and the two husbands came up to George Hicks' farm and with the aid of two or three men cut the logs and built a house and barn. They finished the house about Christmas except the door which was made a few days after they moved in. The weather was as warm as springtime.

"They stocked up the farm a little at a time with horses, cows, hogs, chickens, sheep, a dog and a cat. They cooked on a crane in a big fire-place, always keeping a fire, for they had no matches and if the fire went out they would have to start it with flint and steel.

"One Sunday morning Great Grandfather took some salt and went up to the woods to salt the cows so they would not stray away. Some Indians of the Pottowattomie tribe came through the woods on their ponies all dressed up in their war paints going to Terre Haute to get supplies of ammunition and blankets. Grandmother saw them coming and thought of hiding in the corn, but she saw Grandfather with them so she stayed in the house. The Indians came and ransacked the house, some of them climbed up into the loft and found a dipper made out of a gourd. The Indians wanted it and took it leaving a coon skin for pay. They said they wanted it to put powder in. They were friendly and came to the house many times. The squaws would give Grandma their babies and take hers and when they got ready to go, they would laugh and take back their babies and say, 'Swappie, swappie, no swap.' The old chief talked French and would get Grandfather to tell him the name of things in English and laugh very hard about it. He would come alone and sleep before the fireplace half a day at a time and he was so much in the way as all the cooking was done there that Grandmother told him to 'puckabee' which was the Indiana word meaning 'go away'. He felt so insulted that he went away and didn't come again for a long time.

"After a few years other settlers came and as they had no markets near for the wheat that was raised on the farms, Grandfather and two or three others built a flat-boat and loaded it with pork, corn, wheat, flour and meal and started down the Wabash River. Their objective point was New Orleans. They sold to the planters on their way down and sold the flat-boat and all at New Orleans. They came up the river again on steam-boats as far as they could and walked, when they could not ride. Sometimes they encountered a great deal of trouble on their trips down; they would have to get out in the water and push to loosen the boat. Once when the night was very dark and an awful electrical storm was raging around the electricity was so great that it hung around the edges of their wet hats. They had a hard time getting the boat loose from the bar where it was stuck, but they always got through without serious trouble. Grandfather made his last trip in the spring of 1844, that time he had a general merchandise store at Perrysville, Indiana, and as the boats came all the way up he would buy goods for his store and have them brought up on the steam-boats.

"In the earlier years when he went on the flat boats the children were small, there was one boy about 12 yrs. old. One night Grandmother heard a noise at the barn, she got the lantern, awoke the little boy, took the gun and started out. The wolves were after the sheep that were in the barn yard. She shot at the wolves and ran to the barn, opened the door, drove in the sheep and fastened the door tight and the gate to the high fence about the barn, shot a few times at the wolves and ran to the house. After a while the wolves got up on the top of the barn and tried to tear off the strong clapboards that formed the roof, but they could not loosen them, so by daylight they went away. Deer and wild turkeys were plentiful, also wild honey and delicious wild strawberries and blackberries.

"Grandfather used to go to the mill about seven miles south of Perrysville near where Eugene now stands and where Mrs. McDowell's bungelow stands on the Big Vermillion River. There is a ford here where a battle was fought with the Indians at one time. Grandfather found an old bayonet near there, which they still have at the old home.

"Then Danville was just a village, the people used to drive to Perrysville for dry-goods and supplies of every kind. The Wabash River boats made regular steps up and down and Perrysville was a very busy place.

"After living in town a few years, Great Grandfather decided to build a new house on the farm. He made the brick from clay found on the farm and cut black walnut trees and hauled them across the river to a saw mill. He had it sawed and kiln dried and used it for all the woodwork except the doors. The house was built in 1841 on a hill overlooking the valley and town about a mile from the Cabash River. The road from Danville to Ferrysville goes by the house. The road from Ferrysville to Georgetown was laid with thick plank and toll houses were built where people had to pay for riding on the plank road. It was built in about 1848 or 1849, but in a few years the plank began to warp and get loose so it had to be taken up. This was the forerunner of the Dixie Highway and other paved roads in the country today. Even today this road that used to be paved with planks is unpaved and in stormy weather gets into a pretty bad condition.

"The Hicks Farm of 160 acres bought at $1.25 per acre is still in the family and will have been owned by them one hundred years in 1923.

"Written in 1922, April.

Harriet I. Hicks Dale."

Boston, Oct. ____, 1962. sd-

Dear Uncle,

I have received a letter from Uncle Peck & I will send it to you. We have sent you a correct list of Aunt Allyn's family. Chester I. Reed & wife will be in New York State & will call on you this week. He married Elizabeth Allyn, he is a lawyer & will probably assist you if you need any assistance. The information that Uncle Peck has given in his letter respecting Aunt Allyn family is not correct. I would like to have you write & let us know how you are getting along.

Yours Respectfully,
Cyrus Hicks.

Boston, August 20th, 1864

Dear Uncle,

I received a letter from you last spring informing us of the death of Mrs. English. When she visited Boston we little thought that it was the last time that we should see her, but life is uncertain. I was over to Rahoboth last week and took dinner with Uncle C. C. Peck. He is well and smart as any of his boys. He is 75 years old. I stop'd over night at Seraphine's. She is well. I had thought that I should visit you this month with my wife, but her father is ailing quite fast. He is 95 years old and Mrs. Hicks is staying with him, but we have given it up for the present.

I should like very much to be at Chicago on the 29 to attend the Democrat Convention. I expect that it will be the largest ever held in this Union. I feel quite sure that we can send Lincoln back to Illinois on the 4th of March next. He then can swap horses before crossing the stream or after as he likes. Abraham says: to whom it may concern: everything shall go to destruction if he can't free the Negro.

I should like to hear how you are getting along with the Lees, or Uncle Nathan property. Please write as soon what the prospects are. I think the Lees have had a large share.

Give our regards to your family and to Mr. English and say to him that I shall write to him soon.

Yours Resp.
Cyrus Ficks.

The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that this is crucial for ensuring the integrity of the financial system and for providing a clear audit trail.

In the second part, the document outlines the various methods used to collect and analyze data. It describes how different types of information are gathered and how they are processed to identify trends and patterns. This section also includes a discussion on the challenges associated with data collection and analysis.

The third part of the document focuses on the results of the analysis. It presents a series of findings that highlight the key areas of concern and the potential risks involved. The document also provides recommendations for how these risks can be mitigated and how the system can be improved.

Finally, the document concludes with a summary of the main points and a call to action. It urges all stakeholders to work together to ensure the continued success and stability of the financial system.

Rehoboth, May 9th, 1865

Dear Uncle,

I received your letter (the 8th of May) with gladness and sorrow, glad to hear from you once more, with sorrow that one other has gone the way of all the earth, but so it is and so it must be. Time flies fast and adds to our years, our mortal frame decays and we hasten to the dust from which we were taken. But the grave is not our resting place. Our immortal souls, if found resting in Jesus shall never die, no, never die. May heaven be that blest abode where you and I and all our kindred shall meet to part no more.

How was it with Uncle Mason? Do you think that his spirit rests with God in Heaven? I know nothing of your religion, Dear Uncle, but I hope you have seen your way to Jesus and lean upon Him for salvation. If so, bright and glorious will be that crown which you will wear e'er long.

You wrote of Uncle Mason's property. If there is anything that belongs to us we should be glad to have it. I hope wright and justice will be done and each shall have there share.

Has Uncle Nathan's estate been settled? If so, how? Give my love to all your family.

Write soon and often, for I shall want to know how things are.

From your niece,
Seraphine D. Carpenter.

Boston, Feb. __, '68

Dear Uncle,

I am very sorry to hear you are in poor health. I hope when the spring comes you may feel better so you can come on to see us. I thought we might have been out there before this, but I have been back on the road as Mail Agent for the last two years.

I should like to have seen Aunt Mary before she passed away. I think you must feel very lonely after living together so long a time. We have not heard from Mr. English family. I hope to hear soon.

Our friends in Rehoboth are all well & also the Allene family. Lemuel Wicks' only child is dead. He died more than a year ago.

I have been around to the different Offices & they say they shan't (?) insure the Property any less than they will in Milwaukee. One Office has got an Agent out there & he said it was one per cent. I did not tell them what they charged there, but some of them said they should have to ? on to see before they took it. Perhaps you can git it done less in New York, but I can't here.

I was very glad to hear how the case was sitting along at Lockport.

I hope you will write & let us know how your health is & try to come on & make us a visit this summer.

Please remember us to all your family.

Yours Respt.,
Cyrus Wicks.

HICKS RESERVE FUND MAY MAKE NORTON WEALTHY COMMUNITY

Believer in Compound Interest Who Started Novel Nest Egg
50 Years Ago Now Hailed as Town's Greatest Benefactor.
Income From Undisturbed Principal To Begin in About Four Years. — Remarkable Document Probably Unique.

(Note: The above headline appeared in Providence Sunday Journal, June 5, 1927.)

Picture of Cyrus Hicks appeared under which was the following notation:

"Inspired with Ben Franklin Philosophy, He Began Two Funds
a Half Century Ago, One for Care of Cemetery Lot and the Other for the Town of Norton. Nearly Forty Years After His Death the Forethought of the Maker of the Curious Provisions is being Appreciated."

 The following are excerpts from the newspaper article:

Cyrus Hicks of Boston, nearly half a century after his death, is beginning to be hailed by the citizens of Norton, Mass., as the town's greatest benefactor.

He once signed his name to two documents which, if events take their natural course, will one day make Norton a wealthy community.

He was a quiet man with chin whiskers, an admirer of Benjamin Franklin and a believer in compound interest. He had amassed a large fortune, at least it was so regarded in his time, and six years before his death he took the first step in a course of action that will benefit Nortonites for centuries to come.

..... The Hicks trust fund met with considerable opposition when its terms were first revealed and the Massachusetts General Court passed an act to authorize its acceptance by the town.

That done, the town believed it expedient to accept the terms, although there were some who continued to hold the opinion that the fund inflicted unnecessary burden. Mr.
Hicks, having no children or near relatives, had but two objects in view, the perpetual care of the family cemetery lot and the welfare of the town in which his wife had been born.

On June 30, 1883, with the consent of the General Court and the town Mr. Hicks delivered to the Board of Selectmen of Norton $4000 in bonds "to be forever held in trust," with the understanding that one-half of the income was to be used for the care of the cemetery lot, the other half for the ordinary expenses of the town. Believing that half the income would be more than necessary to defray the cemetery expenses, Mr. Hicks directed that the surplus annually should be paid into another fund to be known as the Hicks reserve fund.

The town refused to show any great interest until after Mr. Hicks's death in 1889, when it was revealed that he had left the residue of his estate, amounting to $22,210.43 to the reserve fund. The board of selectmen and the treasurer hastily searched the records to refresh their memories regarding the terms of the fund.

These provided that the principal of the fund should remain "forever undisturbed", but when the income reached the sum of $5000 annually, $100 was to be paid to the town and $100 for the adornment of the cemetery lot. When the income amounted to $10,000, $200 was to be paid to the town and $200 for the care of the lot.

A lot of mathematicians would have stepped right there and let the town do its own figuring, but not Mr. Hicks. He was a believer in compound interest. He visualized his reserve fund as growing into the hundreds of thousands, eventually into the millions, and he carried the matter through to its conclusion.

He provided that the town should receive $100 for each additional increase of $5000 income, and the same amount applied annually to the care of the lot and the cemetery, as a whole, until the income reached the sum of $100,000 annually. At this time $20,000 was to be paid to the town and $3000 expended annually "for the care and adornment of the whole cemetery," and to make sure of this care, he added "and a good trusty man employed there by the year."

Did he pause there with the mental reservation, "Now let the town do the rest?" by no means! "When the income is $200,000," continued this exponent of banking principles $5000 shall be expended for the cemetery annually, and for every $100,000 increase of income the town shall be paid $20,000."

The faith which the donor imposed in the town has been more than justified, for the reserve fund has grown and multiplied until the amount of the principal sum now stands at $80,786.48 and the annual income amounts to between $3000 and $4000.

Owing to the State requirement, the securities have to be kept in a safe deposit vault having a three-key locking system. And as Boston is the nearest city having a bank with such a locking device, the securities are kept there, one key being held by the bank, one by one of the Selectmen, the other by the Treasurer.

Next follows a declaration of Mr. Hicks stating the purpose of the Hicks Reserve Fund.

..... The remainder of this statement deals with the divisions of the income at various stages of accumulation and with detailed instructions for the care of the cemetery lot and the cemetery. In his will Mr. Hicks, after making a number of other bequests, simply states that the residue of his estate shall be added to the reserve fund.

The will is not unusual in any other way except for one request, that the executors set aside the sum of $600 in a savings bank, the income to be expended for the care of a pet parrot.

The townspeople are unable to recall anything about Mr. Hicks's career, except that as a young man he was a carpenter and that he was shrewd and capable in any business venture in which he engaged. Mrs. Hicks, whose maiden name was Mary Wood, was a native of Norton and maintained an interest in the town's activities.

Mrs. E. M. Lincoln, a grand niece of Mrs. Hicks, recalls that the latter was intensely interested in spiritualism and that after her death Mr. Hicks, although professing complete lack of faith in spiritual communication, visited a clairvoyant for the purpose, he explained, of giving spiritualists a fair test. He is reputed to have remained unconvinced.

Note: I have letters in which Mrs. E. M. Lincoln is referred to.

The Hicks lot is located in the Centre Cemetery near the Congregational Church. Upon the large monument in the middle are carved his name and that of his wife. But in the opinion of the townspeople the Hicks reserve fund will perpetuate the name long after the inscription on the stone has been erased.

 Newspaper article also included picture of Mrs. Hicks, whose Maiden Name Was Mary Wood — A Portion of Will of Cyrus Hicks, Showing Signature and a picture of George E. Smith, Town Clerk and Treasurer, who is a Trustee of the Hicks Reserve Fund.

* See Letters of Cyrus Hicks, also note on D. A. R. Papers of Elizabeth Dale Wilkinson, saying that — "Cousin Cyrus was the son of Jotham Hicks".

Lineage

I, Elizabeth Dale Wilkinson, being of the age of eighteen years and upwards, hereby apply for membership in the Society by right of lineal descent in the following line from Nathan Hicks, who was born in Rehoboth, Mass. on the 20th day of April, 1762 and died in Rehoboth, Mass. on the 10th day of October, 1845.

His place of residence during the Revolution was Rehoboth.

I was born in Danville, County of Vermilion, State of Illinois.

I am the daughter of John Harrington Dale, born Jan. 15, 1842, died and his wife, Harriet Hicks, born May 10, 1844, died ... married June 26, 1873.

The said Harriet Hicks was the daughter of George W. Hicks, born April 10, 1795, died Oct. 1, 1878 and his wife, Mary Curtis, born Feb. 26, 1803, died Feb. 7, 1868, married Sept. 7, 1823.

The said George W. Hicks was the son of Nathan Hicks born April 20, 1762, died Oct. 10, 1845 and his wife, Prudence Round, born _____, 1764, died Feb. 26, 1845, married Feb. 24, 1782.

And he, the said Nathan Hicks is the ancestor who assisted in establishing American Independence, while acting in the capacity of corporal of Capt. Jos. Cole's company, Col. John Jacob's Regiment Mass.

PREFACE

The history of the Taylor family makes a fascinating story of pioneer life and achievement. It is closely linked with some of the most important events and personages of American history.

Most of the records and information in the following pages were furnished by Mr. J.B. Lutz of Cheyenne, Wyoming, whose mother was a Taylor. He spent ten or more years in tracing members of the family. We are particularly indebted to him for copies of the wills of Richard Taylor and his son, Simon.

Additional historical data was taken from a pamphlet, A Sketch of the History of the Taylor Family, written by H.D. Taylor, and read by Dr. Pondleton at the Taylor Reunion at Beaver Dam, Kentucky, on September 9, 1875.

Later records were furnished by Miss Elvessa Raylor and include notes from old letters, old Family Bible records of births, deaths and marriages, and the first county atlas, called "Atlas Map of Vermilion County, Illinois," published by W.R. Brink and Company in 1875.

We are indebted also to others of the family for incidents related from their early memories.

Josephine Taylor Douglas

TAYLOR FAMILY

Richard Taylor came to Virginia from England in the "Mary Margaret " in 1608 , one year after the establishment of the Jamestown settlement. He must have been about thirty four years of age at the time, for when the Muster Roll or Census of Charles Cittie was taken in 1624 , he was fifty . He probably received a grant of land and proceeded to establish himself on it. In 1620 his wife, Dorothy , Came over on the " London MERCHANT." She was about seventeen years of age , and evidently came from England to Virginia to marry him . At the time of the Muster Roll she was twenty and their daughter, Mary , was then three months old . The Richard Taylor to whom we definitely trace kinship was probably a son of this first Richard Taylor .

The Richard Taylor , whose descendants we are, and his wife, Sarah , were residents of Essex County, Virginia. We know that he had two sons , Richard and Simon, and a daughter , Constance , for they were mentioned in his will, drawn March 22, 1679 , and recorded in Will Book 2 page 131 , Essex County Records . A copy of this will certified by the County Clerk of Essex County, follows.

In the name of God , Amen I Richard Taylor, being sick in body but in perfect mind and memory blessed be to God , doe ordaine this my lacy will and Testament. as followeth, Imprimis I bequethe my soule to God who gave it, hoping in the merces of my blessed Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ for eternall salvation, and my body to the earth with convenient christian buriall, 2 ly. I give to my Sonne Richard and My Sonne Symon my plantation and the landthereunto belonging being two hundred acres , and if my Sonne Richard when he comes to age will sell unto his brother Symon his part that then his brother shall give him Five Thousand pounds of tobacco, and if not, then the land and plantation to bee equally divided, and to cast lots both of them for their chares, and I give to each of them two cows with all their increase, both male and female, and to take their choico and Sly. I give to my daughter, Constance, seaven head of cattle, five female with all their increase both male and female and two steeres and one mare and to my Sonne Symon one mare and if any of them miscarry, betwixt this and the last of May then what of them remains to be equally divided amongst my three children. 4thly. I give to my loving wife Sarah, one yearling and twenty three head of cattle, and all the rest of my estate and doe make her my sole executrix and to take herselfe all the rest of my personall estate to her, her heires Exers., Adminers., or assignes forever. 5thly. My desire is, I understanding my wife to be in a very weak condition that my loving neighbors, John English, Peter Ellis, Edward Friar would one a week give my children advise and that they may be kept upon the plantation with my servant, and in case my wife should die, then I appointe and ordaine my loving friend Collo, Leroy Griffin his heirs, Exers, Adminers, assigns sole Exorc. of this, y last will and testont. In witness whereof I have set my name and seal this 22th of March 1678/9

I, Joseph B. Lutz, Cheyenne, Wyoming , certify that the above record of the will of Richard Taylor is a verbatim copy received from Lucille Sherwood, Deputy Clerk, Essex County, Virginia , November 26, 1932 .

Dated December 26 , 1932

Joseph B. Lutz

Evidently Richard Taylor was a devout God-fearing man as well as a thrifty one. He counted his wealth not in pounds and shillings, but in land, livestock and tobacco. Since the sons were to be the heads of future families, to them went the land. The daughter's portion was sufficient livestock to make a very nice dowery for her in case she married. We know that Richard Taylor appreciated harmony and good feeling among the members of his family for he made adequate provision to avoid a quarrel among his heirs.

The next in line of descent is Simon Taylor, younger son of Richard. He seems to have followed in the footsteps of his planter father , for in his will drawn August 18 , 1728 in Richmond County, Virginia he bequeathed three of his sons each a plantation together with part of a tract of land which he held in claim (probably back toward the mountains, since his sons settled there .)

Tobacco was still used as a medium of exchange . A copy of the will given below, brings to light a number of very interesting details .

In the name of God Amen This the 18th day of August one thousand seven hundred and twenty eight I , Simon Taylor of Richmond County , in the parish of North Farnham being sick and weak yett of pergeet mind and memory thanks be to Almighty God for it Doo make this my Last Will and Testament in manner and forme following revoking and absolutely disannulling all the others heretofore by me made either in word or writing notwithstanding any clause Dorogatory in the same but make this to be taken for my Last Will and Testament (Viz) : First, I bequeath my Soul to God my Maker and to Jesus Christ my Redeemer there to Rest untill the Joyful day of the Resurrection when my Soul and Body shall meet again and be made partakers of the never fading joys of Immortality and my body to the earth from whence it came to be buryd by my Exrs., hereafter named and touching such Temporal Estate as the Lord hath been pleased to bestow upon me I dispose of as followeth---Imps.: I give and bequeath to my son Jno. Taylor and the heirs of his body This plantation whereon I now live with halfe the land to it which I always was used to hold and for want of such heirs to fall to my son George and the heirs of his body and for want of such to the next heir at law-----

Item----I give and bequeath to my son William Taylor the old plantation from whence I lately removed with the other halfe of the aforsd Tract of land to him and the heirs of his body and for the want of such to fall to my son Thomas Taylor and the heirs of his body and for want of such to the next heir at law-----

Item-----I Give and Bequeath to my son Septimus Taylor that plantation whereon Patrick Doran now lives and all the land to it which I bought with it and the heirs of his body and for the want of such to all to my son George Taylor and heirs of his body and for the want of such to the next heir at law----

Item--- I Give and Bequeath to my daughter Sarah Jasper one thousand pounds of Tobco; to be paid to her by my exrs., hereafter named-----

Item-----I Give and Bequeath to my Granddaughter Eliza. Jasper one two year old heiffer to be paid to her as aforesaid--

Item-----I give to my son Jno. Taylor the feather bed I commonly ly on together with the furniture belonging to it-- Item-----O Give to my son Wm. Taylor that feather bed in the old house and the furniture belonging to it--

Item-----I Give to my four sons last named the best four Iron pots I have to each one of them--

Item-----I Give the next two best feather beds to my two sons Thomas and Septimus Taylor with all that belongs to them--

Item-----I Give abd Bequeath to my son George Taylor my Negro woman named Jenney.

Item-----I make Constitute and Appoint my Sons Jno. Wm. and Septimus Taylor Exors. ; of this my last Will and Testament to whome with my other two sons Thos and George I give all the Rest and Residue of my estate not yet named to be equally divided between the five after Debts paid. In Witness wherof I have hereunto sett my hand and seal the day and year first written within.

State of Virginia :
County of Richmond , to wit:

I , E. Carter Dolano , deputy clerk of the circuit court in and for the county aforesaid , in the State of Virginia , do hereby certify that the aforesaid will of Simon Taylor bearing date on the 13th day of August 1728 is a true copy from the records of my Court, this 20th day of October 1932. Taken from Will Book No. 5 at page 126 .

Given under my hand and seal .

E. Carter Dolano, Dep. Cl.
Circuit Court, Richmond Co. Va.

The bequests of Feather beds and iron pots may sound amusing in these days of inner-spring mattresses and pressure cookers , but such things constituted the finest of the household furnishings . Anyone could cut from the native timber enough lumber to make furniture ; but a fat puffy feather bed was an accumulation of feathers from many generations of geese, and therefore highly prized . And as foundries were unknown in this country in those days, all metal utensils were brought from England and shipping was slow and expensive .

The wife of Simon Taylor was Elizabeth Lewis , a woman of dignity and position among her neighbors , and of special interest to us . " Abraham Lincoln was a Lee" , an article written by William E. Barton , father of Bruce Barton, for Good Housekeeping Magazine (January, 1929) contains the following paragraphs :

" Introducing the characters in the order of their appearance , the curtain rises first on Elizabeth Taylor of Richmond County, Virginia , who acquired her married name when the Virginia Taylors were all Taylors and before William Taylor changed his name and that of his descendants to ' Tayloe ' . The date is May 11, 1747 , and on that spring day Elizabeth Taylor , weak in body of ' perfect mind and memory, thanks be to Almighty God for it ' , is disclosed in the act of signing her will . She must have been nearly ninety years old when she attached her signature to that important document , and her daughters, Dorothy Croucher and Sarah Ellato , were comparatively old ladies . Both were widows, and Dorothy had lost two husbands , the first, William Lee in 1717 and the second ,

Richard Croucher , in 1740 . To these two daughters, Elizabeth Taylor left her clothing with the provision that it should be divided equally and that Dorothy should have first choice . The estate was probably a large one and the assumption is that the needs of the daughters had already been provided for . Only one grandson was mentioned in the Will , though doughty old Elizabeth Taylor had at least four . That one grandson was William Lee, son of Dorothy and her first husband . Let us remember his name and that he was alive and hearty , May 11, 1747 when his grandmother signed her will . His father had died thirty years before and he, himself had children , as we shall presently see.

And now let us examine the country in which all this occurred.

The northern end of the ' northern neck ' of Virginia occupying a space of about thirty five miles from northwest to southeast and with an average width of not more than fifteen miles between the Rappahannock and the Potomac , gave to the nation more famous men than any other spot of equal area in the United States . There lived the Carters, the Fauntleroyes , the Corbins , the Mountjoys , the Taylor-Taylors family , the Wormleys , the Lees and the Washingtons. This community was a remarkable one , and, having to this day no railroad and being pent in by deep and tidal rivers, it had its choice of travel by boat or by roads through the woods . To an unusual extent , its inhabitants knew their neighbors , and everyone was related to everyone else on the same social level . It is much more than a possibility that our old friend Elizabeth Taylor rode over and congratulated Mary Ball Washington when little George was born in 1732 . The Balls lived southeasterly from the Taylors . They all knew each other . For a time they were all in the same parish , and when later and the parish was divided , the same minister conducted services in both parishes , performed all the marriages and baptized all the babies. "

In the next few paragraphs , Mr. Barton discovers the Hanks family living in close contact to the Lees , and traces the Hanks line down to Abraham Lincoln . There again he takes up the thread of the story :

"Let us go back again to the grand old lady Elizabeth Taylor when we found at the beginning of our story signing her will . We remember that she had two daughters, and that one of them, Dorothy, married a man named William Lee and had by this marriage a son named William, who was the only grandson mentioned in the will . He was appointed her executor and her residuary legatee . His four children were likewise the only great-grandchildren named in the old lady's will . To her great-granddaughter, Betty Lee, she left her bed-rug blanket , three pairs of sheets, her prayer book , one cow and calf, one ewe and one lamb, one pewter basin , her Great Trunk , her long handled pot ladle and frying pan , her little salt-collar , and her looking-glass . Betty was her name-sake and fared best in the old lady's Will .

To William Lee's other two daughters , Ann and Sarah , she gave each a cow and calf , a ewe and lamb , a small trunk and a pewter basin .

To William Lee's son, Richard Lee , she bequeathed her Great Chest, and evidently there was considerable estate which William Lee inherited as residuary legatee.

William Lee died in 1764, seventeen years after the death of his grandmother . In all these seventeen years he had not finally settled her estate . If he had done so, we might never have come into possession of the interesting information which connects Lincoln with the Lees. As it was , each of William Lee's three living grandchildren (Sarah apparently had died) was mentioned in the settlement of William's own estate as entitled to sums still due them under the will of their great-grandmother, Elizabeth Taylor . To Richard Lee , one of the grandchildren, was payable four shillings . Betsy Lee and Ann Lee did not receive their inheritances directly : It was paid for them to their husbands, who are named in the accounting of the administrators , Thomas Hanks and Joseph Hanks. These two young men, cousins, married the two Lee girls as we discover through these ancient wills and reports to the probate court and probably never would have discovered otherwise, and Ann Lee, by her marriage to Joseph Hanks, became President Lincoln's great-grandmother ."

These very interesting paragraphs reveal a number of things, one of which is the High social position held by the family . Another is the fact that Elizabeth Taylor had two daughters , Dorothy and Sarah , while her husband Simon names only one, Sarah, in his will . Also he mentions no bequest of this wife . Judging from these facts and the fact that, at the age of ninety, Elizabeth had a considerable estate to dispose of, it would seem that she had been married previously and that Dorothy was her daughter by this former marriage . From the tone of the opening paragraph of Simon Taylor's will it would seem that there might have been some family friction perhaps over including this step-daughter, Dorothy, among his heirs .

But the most important fact derived from these paragraphs is that, in doughty old dame Elizabeth , we and Abraham Lincoln have a common ancestor .

John Taylor, oldest son of Simon and Elizabeth , is the one whose line we follow . Since he was a resident of Rappahannock County in the Blue Ridge Mountains, we infer that he was of an adventurous nature , not content to remain a planter on the fertile land of the coastal region which was his inheritance from his father , but pushed westward into new territory , possibly settling on the tract of land mentioned by Simon Taylor in his will . From the Taylor Family Tree we learn that he married Hannah Harrison. He must have loved and honored his parents for his eldest son and daughter bear their names, Simon and Elizabeth. His second son and the one in whom we are most interested , bore his mother's maiden name, Harrison, and the youngest son was given the well-known family name of Richard . John Taylor is reported to have been Judge Advocate of the Armies of Virginia .

Under " Harrison Family "

"To have been employed as Clerk of the Council indicates that Harrison the Emigrant had education and ability , thus his acquaintance in Colony of Virginia ."

A number of planters from Somers Island (now Bermudas) petitioned Parliament in England June 4, 1628 , of which Ben Harrison was one of the planters , that over six years had brought their small means in tobacco which had lain in the custom house four months under a higher duty than it would yield , were in great necessity , some having been arrested for their board , and praying to have their tobacco by bills of store for the present year; all signatures and names written by same hand so could not be compared with Clerk of the Virginia Council. The tobacco was released. Ben Harrison petitioned Captain September 20, 1629 for the Virginia Colony . On March 15, 1633-4 in a certified copy of Abraham Preisey's will , Ben Harrison signed it as Clerk-Con. Virginia.

There were no wills of Harrisons in Bermuda prior to 1600 and no Benjamin Harrison will afterwards.

Benjamin Harrison --"Berkeley" married Mary---he had two sons Benjamin Harrison and Peter Harrison . Later Mary married Benjamin Sidway. A patent dated October 9, 1649 states that 600 acres were granted to Benjamin Harrison (dec'd March 21, 1643) were due to Benjamin Jr. "as his son and heir" . Peter died before middle age and is not mentioned in the will of his mother Mary Sidway dated March 1, 1687-8 . Quoted from the will--"I give to my Granddaughter Hannah Harrison the horse colt that sucks on the black mare , " the rest to my sons Benjamin Harrison and Thomas Sidway . Her will was proved May 29, 1688.

The following are notes of Miss Elvessa Taylor from "The Harrison Family, " by C.P. Keith--1893, page 46.

In December 1634, Richard Kemp, duly commissioned secretary arrived in Bermuda , seems that Benjamin Harrison then went to Virginia from the Bermudas. The earliest acquisition of land in Virginia by the emigrant was by deed from John Davis of Kiskiacke, dated July ninth in the ninth year of King Charles I. for 200 acres on Wa rros-quicake Creek , which in a patent for it dated July 7, 1635 was said to be in the tenure of Thomas Jordan. Other patents followed , but "Berkeley " and "Brandon ", the celebrated seats of the family on the James River, were acquired by later generations . " Brandon" as far as I can tell by the emigrant's son, "Berkeley " by the first Harrison who may have inherited it through the maternal line . The operation of a will probably made the emigrants son a richer man than if he had been a mere planter .

Benjamin of " Berkeley " was rich independently of his father, in whose lifetime he died possessed of large tracts of land .

The first Harrison appears to have left but two children surviving him , Benjamin and Peter, both by his wife, Mary, who later married Benjamin Sidway ; and as in a patent , dated Oct. 9, 1649 , it is recited that 500 acres granted to Benjamin Harrison who died March 21, 1645, were due to Benjamin Jr. as his " son and heir." We conclude that the law of primogeniture being in force, that Benjamin was the elder son, and that property belonging to Peter in his minority was not inherited but devised to him, probably by his father whose will has not been found.

On January 16, 1652, Benjamin Sidway, by order of court, conveyed certain land belonging to Peter Harrison, orphan of Benjamin Harrison. " In a patent dated 1655 , quoted by the 'Critic ' published in Richmond, certain lands is said to adjoin that of Peter Harrison, son of Benjamin Harrison, deceased , and son-in-law (step-son) of Captain Sidway .

In the will of Mary Sidway, as before mentioned she gave a horse to her granddaughter and a colt--this child was Hannah Harrison . Item in the will: "I give and bequeath unto John Kersey one yearling hepher; and for the rest of my estate, my will is, after my just debts are paid, that it be equally divided between my two sons Benjamin Harrison and Thomas Sidway. The will was witnessed by Lyddia Norwood and Samuel Alsebrook , who proved it on May 29, 1688.

From H.D. Taylor's " Historical Sketch " we take the following interesting facts :

"John Taylor died without leaving a will, and under the feudal law of the age, the oldest son took the property which was said to be large , and left Harrison shareless. Instead of lying around a lackey and a pensioner on his brother , he boldly struck out for the frontier village, where he took up the trade of house carpenter . He located near the village of Winchester . Here it was that he evinced the only known instance of ill-temper and ungovernable rage . A British recruiting officer located at that place took a fancy to him and often tried to induce him to become a soldier, but all in vain. It was this officer's practice to gather a crowd about the tavern of nights, and drink and carouse until someone became so drunk and insensible that he either took the bounty, or had it slipped into his pocket and was then forced into the ranks as a soldier. As young Taylor was strictly temperate, he never could be caught in this way; but one night after a hard day's labor , he had taken his seat in a quiet, retired corner and fell asleep . The officer, observing this, slipped the bounty into his pocket, and awaited until his supposed victim awoke, and then blandly addressed him, remarked that it was time that they should go home to the barracks. Taylor looked at him with astonishment and asked what he meant; the officer, who had formed an incorrect idea of his man, with a haughty air informed him that having taken the bounty , he was now a soldier of King George and the barracks was his proper home. Taylor denied ever taking the bounty, when the officer haughtily informed him and asked him how he could deny it when he had King George's coin in his pocket . At the word, pocket, the youth suddenly ran his hand into his, grasped the coin and threw it with his utmost strength at the head of the officer, and flew into him with all the venom of an enraged tiger, but was caught and held by his friends, whilst the King's representative beat a hasty retreat and gave his recruit a wide berth ever afterwards.

It was not long until he married Miss Jane Curlet and settled far back in the woods, where with a single horse, he commenced clearing and cultivating the forest. This horse had to be bled and turned to the range at night and hunted up again in the morning. Taylor, like all frontiersmen, carried his gun when he went to the woods, and one morning shot a deer just as he came up with his horse. He had just commenced reloading his gun as he heard a turkey gobble, and then another and another, until they nearly formed a ring around him; he at once comprehended danger, turned his horse's head toward home, struck it a blow and then crept off in another direction through the undergrowth, until he thought himself entirely outside of the gobbling ring, and then he made his way home with the utmost speed and had barely arrived when a messenger announced an Indian raid upon an adjoining settlement. The horse, in passing through the gobbling ring had been greatly alarmed by the redskins, and made his way home, where he stood ready to bear the young wife and husband to the nearest fort."

Another interesting incident might here be mentioned connecting George Washington with our story. While living with his brother, Lawrence, Washington was defeated in an election for the House of Burgesses at Williamsburg. Previously, he had taken a company of men to Winchester, Frederick County to put down an Indian uprising. Being well known in that vicinity, he returned to Winchester where he was evidently quite popular among the settlers, and from there was sent as a representative to the House of Burgesses.

From another source, we learn that "it is probable that Harrison Taylor was a Continental soldier--at least so tradition teaches--"

As the country improved, Harrison Taylor built a mill on Little North River , a stream in Frederick County, Virginia , by which the main road passes leading from the East across the Allegheny Mountains to the great West . Here he raised a large family , bore the reputation of a peaceable , quiet citizen and an honest miller. His reputation for honesty spread throughout the new country and he became known by many as " honest old Taylor at the mill ." His wife shared with him the qualities of honest integrity and unbounded benevolence , but otherwise they were as unlike as it was possible to be . Yet this seemed to strengthen the bonds of mutual affection between them .

Jane Curlot Taylor , demonstrative, possessed of powerful will, of strong sense , abounding in wit and anecdote , and of almost infallible memory, was ever remarkable for her great social qualities . She was ever ready to relieve the sick and suffering , no matter what their condition in life . Dying mothers would often beseech that their children be left in her care , and in this way her house became almost an orphan asylum during the ravages of the Revolutionary War . It is said that at times , she would have as high as thirty orphan children dependent upon her for food and raiment . She, too, was the principal surgeon and physician of the backwoods settlement . With her lancet ready in her pocket , she was always ready to replace dislocated limbs, set broken bones , lance or bleed as required, with the steady nerves of a hospital surgeon , although the wail of a feeble infant or a tale of suffering or sorrow would at all times bring tears to her eyes.

By the most untiring care and industry, these old people acquired property and raised a family of eight sons and four daughters . Several of these sons had visited Kentucky , and from their representations of the country, the old folks were induced to sell out and remove to Ohio County, Kentucky , where all the sons and the three daughters finally settled . Their last days were spent in the home of their son, Thomas , where they died and were buried side by side in the family graveyard.

Their eldest daughter , Elizabeth , did in Virginia. Richard , the eldest son married twice and had a large family . Thomas, the second son became a Methodist minister . Harrison, the third son , is the one who our interest follows and we shall hear more of him later . The fourth son, William, became a prosperous farmer and distinguished himself by building the first brick residence in the county . John, the fifth son, died about middle age , and Septimus , the sixth son, died early in life . Simon and Joseph, the youngest sons, thought Kentucky soil too poor and moved west . Hannah married Samuel Brown , living and dying in Ohio County, Kentucky . Margaret married James Harsha and moved to Illinois and Jane married Levi Pigman, going with him to Ohio.

The second Harrison Taylor is spoken of as a man who was " born without fear and who died without reproach."

From his Virginia home he made many trips to Kentucky traveling through the wilderness alone . The new country appealed to him and he decided to make his home there.

In Virginia , he married Elizabeth Allen , and together they went into Kentucky and made a home in Ohio County . There they raised a family of eight children : namely , John Allen , Jane (Mrs. John Wallace) , Ann Pollock, who married Reverend Alexander Downey , Thomas Alfred , Cynthia (Mrs. John Lemon) , Rachael (Mrs. John E. Johnson) , Washington and Harrison . One daughter Elizabeth , died at the age of six years .

Harrison Taylor, the second , was a plain, simple- hearted man. His house for years was the headquarters of land claimants who came to the county to look after their lands. His thorough knowledge of the country rendered his services highly important , and in this way he often spent days and weeks , not only in entertaining them , but in showing them their lands also, for which his old Virginia ideas of hospitality would not allow him to charge a cent .

There was an extraordinary trait in his character . Although remarkable from childhood for his fearless courage, and although served as Justice of the Peace and Sheriff in this chaotic state of society , he was an extensive trader and served as wagon master to the army in Hopkins Campaign, yet he was never known to have had a fight or a personal difficulty with anyone . He and his brother Joseph served in the United States Army in the war of this country with England commencing in 1812 , and took part in the battle of Tippecanoe under General Harrison . Harrison Taylor must have told his children of his trip to Indiana and something of the opportunities there, for one of his sons, Thomas Alfred , later went there for a number of years .

Harrison Taylor spent the rest of his years in Kentucky and is buried beside his wife in Hartford Cemetery .

" Thomas A. Taylor was born in Ohio County , Kentucky in 1805 . His parents died when he was about fourteen years old and he went to live with Jack Allen, Esq., a brother of his mother , with whom he remained for several years , learning during that time the 'tanner's trade '. Sometime after arriving at the estate of manhood , he went to Tippecanoe County , Indiana , " Riding horseback to Lafayette , he stopped at the Buckhorn Tavern , an inn run by Judge William Allen, who had several daughters. One of these, Ivesa, young Thomas Taylor married .

An interesting incident is told of the meeting of these two . Shortly after his arrival in Tippecanoe County , Thomas Taylor was one of a party of young people who were spending the evening with games and merriment . In order to choose partners for one of the games , the names of the gentlemen were written on slips of paper and placed in a hat to be drawn out by the ladies . Since Mr. Taylor's name was not known , the word "stranger " was written on his slip . Miss Ivesa Allen drew this slip from the hat and so met the "stranger ." They must have enjoyed each other's company for in September, 1830, about a year after that time , they were married near Lafayette , Indiana. There he worked at his business of tanning for twenty years, thus laying the foundation for his future prosperity . Their seven children were born in Romney, Indiana, 3 miles from Lafayette

Margaret, their eldest daughter, later became the wife of John Harvey, Sudan and Serepta married brothers, Francis and James Daugherty, Elizabeth became the wife of John Newlin, and Cynthia married Robert Smith. There were three sons: William Harrison, who died in infancy, Alvin Allen and Thomas Alfred.

In the spring of 1853, Thomas Taylor, the elder, buying property in Vermilion County, Illinois left Indiana. There he engaged in farming, stock raising, wood producing. During the years he accumulated property, some five hundred acres in all, and prepared to spend the remainder of his days in quiet and independence.

He not only gave each of his children a substantial inheritance, but also a good education and an early and thorough training in religion and morals. The children, with one exception, followed the example of the parents in maintaining fellowship with Cumberland Presbyterian Church. Mr Taylor was a staunch member of that church, always attending Presbytery. His long Prince Albert double breasted coat and high silk hat were always kept especially for these occasions and never worn for frivolity or light-minded past times. He and his family were very active in old Mount Vernon Church, a quaint old-fashioned structure with its surrounding graveyard, situated west of Catlin, Illinois. The family always had prayers morning and evening-----long morning prayers, which the father often ended rather abruptly with -----"Amen.----- Boys, get your horses ." His youngest son, Tom, tired from the day's activities, often fell asleep as he knelt beside his chair during the evening hour of family worship, and he had to be shaken awake before he could be sent off to bed . The father was stern and firm in disposition and discipline and young Tom often "felt the toe of his boot. "

The home of this good man was often the stopping place for movers, pioneers going west to settle . The well, which served to water Mr. Taylor's abundant flocks of sheep , was placed outside the fence along the roadside for the benefit of all who might come by . Travelers along the road often camped nearby , buying eggs, milk and other supplies at the farm . Here Thomas Taylor lived , serving God and his fellow-man until his death .

In July 1876 , accompanied by his son Tom , he traveled by train to Philadelphia to attend the Centennial celebration honoring the 100th anniversary of the founding of our nation . While in Philadelphia , they visited Wannamaker's Store--this was first founded by John Wanna-maker , well known merchant . Upon learning of the visi-ters from the " far West " (as Illinois was thought of in that time) , Mr. Wannamaker invited young Mr. Taylor into his office to talk with him about his home section of the country, and upon his departure presented him with a pair of silk hose to take as a gift to his wife.

Their return trip was made by boat up the Hudson River from New York City to Albany thence to Niagara Falls, and from Buffalo by boat to Chicago, Illinois . On the boat trip the elder Mr. Taylor was stricken ill with a form of dysentery and fever . The Ship's doctor attended him, but the illness persisted . He never quite recovered and his death occurred in September 1876, within a short time of his return home.

The second Thomas Alfred Taylor was born in Tippecanoe County, Indiana . He was five years old when the family moved to Illinois and settled on the farm west of Catlin. Here he received the farm training which stood him in good stead when, years later, he owned a section of land in Vermillion County . He attended old Taylor School and later was sent away for the advantages of higher education. He attended one year (the last of the institutions existence) at Mt. Zion Academy , Macomb, Illinois. The next year, 1865, he entered the New, Lincoln University, also a Cumberland Presbyterian School just opening its doors. (This school was later moved to Decatur and is now known as James Milliken University.) At Lincoln , young Tom Taylor was elected the first president of the Athenian Society , a literary organization for men . (Later his son Joel was a member of the same society and his daughter, Elvessa, belonged to the sister society, the Amiclaean.) Reading and spelling were always his forte. In later years he loved to read and tell stories to his grandchildren .

In 1869, Tom Taylor married Mary Catharine Acree, the daughter of Joel and Elvessa Acree whose farm lay just west of the Taylor homestead . Though the young people had attended school together , the two families had never " neighbored " much as they differed in religion . Mr. Acree was a trustee of the Christian Church , a " Campbell-ite " , and neither family was too happy over the impending marriage . However, the young people persisted in the face of family opposition . Mary Acree had attended school at the Old Red Seminary in Danville , and she taught school for one year . With the money she earned, she bought her trousseau . She was 21 when they were married.

For a number of years Mr. Taylor taught school----- Pleasant View , Fairview, Shiloh---names well known in Vermilion County rural education . His special pleasure were the Friday afternoon programs-----readings, orations, dramatizations, contests . Some of the amusing experiences from the years of his teaching became his favorite stories to tell in later years .

As a boy he was sent to the " timber " to cut saplings for firewood . Riding on the sled load of wood on the return trip Tom began to feel the penetrating cold. He set fire to a few small twigs hoping to warm his hands, but instead the small embers slipped between the bigger pieces and soon he had such a fire going that only quick work with great handfuls of snow succeeded in keeping the whole load and the sled, also, from going up in flames.

On another occasion he sent out to sow wheat . Sowing wheat broadcast took time , and as the day wore on, Tom began to tire of his job and to think longingly of his favorite fishing hole . He decided that no one could tell by looking over the ground whether or not he had sown the wheat , and that if he could do away with the rest of the bag, he could get away sooner to go fishing . So he buried all that remained behind an old stump, thinking that it would go undetected . However , when the wheat began to sprout thickly over part of the field and not at all over the rest , and when at last his father discovered a great clump of wheat coming up all in one place near the stump , Tom's trickery was found out and he received a thrashing for his trouble.

When he was sixteen , he tried to enlist but was refused as being too young . However, he felt quite grown-up and had been enjoying attending dances around the countryside . His father discovered this and to discourage such light and frivolous pastimes took Tom's best boots and hid them . Soon another dance was planned by the Burgoyne boys who were taking care of William Hawk-in's farm while he was away at the army. Tom wanted very much to go , but with no boots, his chances looked poor. He waited until the household had retired and then he slipped outside along the house to his father's bedroom window . Knowing just where his father habitually set his boots on retiring , young Tom quietly reached through the window and borrowed his father's footgear and went to the dance , as quietly returning the boots to their proper place on his return . We assume that the elder Taylor never found out what fancy steps his boots had executed on the dance floor .

From his early teaching experiences, one stands out. At one of the Friday entertainments , a dramatization of Caesar's death was the star spot on the program . Dan Davis , as Caesar , was draped in a borrowed sheet for a toga , and for the sake of realism was supplied with a pig bladder filled with poke berry juice . At the moment when the assassins fell upon him to stab him , he shouted " Et tu , Brute ! " and squeezed the bladder tied under his toga. The ensuing gush of red juice trickling down his white robe so realistically was too much for the little ones , who set up such wails of fright as to disrupt the program completely .

Mr. Taylor's great love of a good story was characteristic . On many winter evenings , he read aloud to his household (for the hired men and girls were included in the family circle) choosing the works of Scott, Dickens, Shakespeare, or some well known historian for his subject. All of his grandchildren remember him as a most entertaining story-teller , a favorite being " Old Mr. Post."

He was a man of good judgment and was chosen president of Lake View Hospital , acting in that capacity for twelve years and remaining a life member of the Association . He served as a director of the First National Banks of Catlin and Oakwood , as well as holding responsible positions in other business , social and fraternal organizations . He was a 32nd degree Mason and a Knight Templar.

He was a member of the Presbyterian Church , always guided by faith in its teachings , and always active in promoting its welfare . One of the outstanding experiences of his life was going as a representative from the Bloomington Presbytery to the General Assembly in Dallas, Texas . Upon his return he carefully prepared a report of the proceedings which was typed by Rev. George E. Keithley , then the pastor of the local church, to be sent to the Presbytery . The report was acknowledged by a letter praising its thoroughness and expressing the appreciation of Presbytery for the fine work.

Mr. Taylor's enjoyment of and interest in his fellow men was unflagging . He " never know a stranger " and was known by many people as " Uncle Tommy Taylor." The fact that he was a good conversationalist , as well as possessing an active sense of humor made it easy for him to make friends. Uncle Joe Cannon was a frequent visitor at the Taylor home .

He was a member of the Old Settler's Society , and for a number of years was a guiding light for the old Catlin Fair. It was known by that name although it was the Vermillion County Fair, holding a 50 year lease on the Sandusky property west of Catlin . In that time 49 fairs were held , drawing large crowds from miles around . Mr. Taylor's special interest were the Fourth of July Celebrations held at the Fair Grounds . Soon after the close of the Spanish American War , a special Independence Day Celebration took place . On that occasion, Mr Taylor succeeded in arranging for Battery A to attend and parade and drill as part of the afternoon's proceedings . A cannon mounted on a caisson was brought from Danville , but in order to prevent frightening the horses at the Fair Grounds , it was set up and fired behind Mr. Taylor's home.

After the Catlin Fair was discontinued, Mr. Taylor kept up the Fourth of July Celebration with a picnic supper for his large family following the fireworks display in the evening---pin wheels, cannon crackers, Roman candles, and the ever spectacular rockets , as well as sparklers and small crackers for the youngsters .

His love of having his family about him was most evident at the Christmas gatherings when those of his children and grandchildren from several miles away came Christmas Eve to join the others for the Christmas program at the church, to be followed by a huge tree and presents for all ; then all were put to bed somehow or other, scattered among the nearby aunts and uncles or sleeping three in a bed or on pallets on the floor at Grandfather's to gather again at the big house for turkey dinner and all the fixin's Christmas Day . How longingly the youngsters watched from their seats upon the stairs while they waited for second table. And how patient Auntie Voss had to be with all the chasing in and out with wet and snowy feet after all the careful preparation and cleaning . To all of us those memories are most precious.

As we look back over the lives of our predecessors , we feel very humble and grateful for the heritage that is ours , as well as a sense of obligation to those former Taylors to carry on the traditions of firm religious faith, interest in and promotion of the best in national as well as local affairs, industry in business , and a sense of responsibility toward the weak and unfortunate . "We can pay our debt to the past by putting the future in debt to ourselves. " *

RICHARD TAYLOR

[D. 1624 , at the age of 50) from Kent County, England, in the " Mary Margaret " to Jamestown , Virginia in 1608.
 Listed in the 1624 muster as inhabitant of " Colloge Land."
 Married Dorothy -----born 1603 . Came in the "London Merchant , " in 1620 .

* From "Compendium of American Genealogy--First Families of America , " Volume 7.

Richard Taylor came to Virginia from England in the "Mary Margaret" in 1603. His wife, Dorothy, came in "The London Merchant" in 1620. At the time of the Census or Muster Roll of Charles Cittie in 1624, Richard Taylor was 50 years old, his wife, 20, and their daughter, Mary, 3 months old. This leads to the presumption that Richard Taylor was 34 when he came to Virginia, received a grant of land, and 11 or 12 years later married a girl of seventeen, who had probably come to Virginia to marry him. The Richard Taylor below, whose ancestry we definitely trace, is believed to be the son of this first Richard, although absolute evidence is lacking. Records are said to be available tracing back to Edward III from this first Richard.

In Great Grandfather Taylor's Song Book

Farewell, loving Christians;
 Time is at hand,
 When we must be parted from the social band.
 Our several engagements doth call us away;
 Separations are needful and we must obey.
 When we are parted and scattered abroad,
 We pray for each other while wrestling with God,
 Farewell, Loving Christians, farewell all around
 If we never meet anymore till we wake underground
 To meet you in Glory I'll give you my hand
 Our Savior to praise in a pure social band.

" And I never will see Susie again," so said Marse David Spurgeon the day of the gib dinner given for Susannah and William Allen the day before they left Kentucky for Ohio, then to Indiana in Tippecanoe County. The above old familiar hymn was sung at the dinner.

This account was told to Elvessa Taylor , October, 1913 at Winchester, Kentucky by "White ' Lize," an old colored albino (pink eyes and light hair) woman who was about six years old at the time of the above occasion; her mother was a slave of Marse David.

THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES

The first part of the history of the United States is the period from the discovery of the continent by Christopher Columbus in 1492 to the establishment of the first permanent settlements. This period is characterized by the exploration of the continent by Spanish, French, and English explorers, and the establishment of the first permanent settlements by the English in 1607. The second part of the history is the period from the establishment of the first permanent settlements to the American Revolution in 1776. This period is characterized by the growth of the colonies, the struggle for independence, and the establishment of the United States as a new nation.

The third part of the history is the period from the American Revolution to the present. This period is characterized by the growth of the United States as a world power, the Civil War, the Reconstruction period, and the modern era. The fourth part of the history is the period from the present to the future. This period is characterized by the continued growth of the United States as a world power, and the challenges of the future.

The history of the United States is a story of growth, struggle, and achievement. It is a story of a nation that has grown from a small colony to a world power, and of a people who have overcome many challenges and achieved many great things. The history of the United States is a story that is still being written, and it is a story that we all have a part in.

THOMAS A. TAYLOR *

Thomas A. Taylor, a prominent resident of Catlin Township, is a man whose well trained, vigorous mind and progressive views place him in the front ranks of the enlightened, wide-awake agriculturists of Vermilion County. He has a large farm of nearly 600 acres, whose fertile fields , roomy substantial buildings and well ordered appearance generally, mark it as one of the best managed and choicest estates in this part of the county, and here on section 5 he has erected a handsome residence that is replete with all the modern comforts.

Our subject was born in Tippicance, Indiana, April 25, 1847 , a son of Thomas A. and Ives Allen Taylor, natives of Ohio County and Shelby County, Kentucky . After marriage, his parents began their wedded life in Tippecanoe County, Indiana near Lafayette , where he followed his trade, that of a tanner, living there until 1852 when they and their family came to Vermilion County, Illinois, to settle among its pioneers , taking up their abode in Catlin, Township. The father died here in September, 1876 , and an upright and honored citizen was thus lost to the community with whose highest interests his own had been identical from the first hour of his settlement here . He was a man of sincere piety and a worthy member of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. His wife still survives and makes her home in Catlin Township. She is truly a good woman and a devoted member of the same church. They had eight children of whom our subject was the seventh in order of birth.

He was five years old when he accompanied his parents to Vermillion County , and the remainder of his life has since been passed here . He was given the advantages of a liberal education, obtaining the basis of it in the public schools , and then he became a student at Lincoln University in Logan County, Ill. and subsequently took an excellent course of study at Mt. Zion Academy, Macomb, Ill. his studies being of a practical character such as would be of benefit to him in his business relations and in his work . After leaving school, he devoted himself to the teaching profession for nine years , meeting with great success in that vocation and by his intelligent methods placing himself in the forefront of the best educators in this part of the country . He has resided in Catlin , and aside from Teaching has given his attention wholly to agriculture owning and managing one of the largest and finest farms in this region, as before mentioned.

Mr. Taylor frankly acknowledges that he is greatly indebted for much that is good in his life to his amiable wife to whom he was married in Catlin Twsp. March 11, 1869. She is in every respect a true Christian, possessing much intelligence and capacity, and a model housewife, and fills the perfect measure of wife, mother, friend, than which no greater eulogy can be pronounced. In her the Christian Church finds one of its most consistent members. Mrs. Taylor's maiden name was Mary C. Acree, and she is a daughter of the late Joel and Elvessa Yount Acree, known and honored as among the earliest settlers of Catlin Township, where he continued to reside till his death Nov. 27, 1880.

The father was born in Alabama , and the mother in Shelby County, Kentucky. They married and settled in Catlin Twsp. in early pioneers times. He was a valued member of the Christian Church and a thoroughly upright man . The mother is still living in Catlin Twsp. and she is also a respected member of the Christian Church . They had two children who lived to adulthood, Mrs. Taylor being the eldest, and she was born in Catlin Twsp. Nov. 12, 1848 . Ten of the twelve children that have gladdened the happy wedded life of our subject and his wife are still with them, two having died in infancy. The names of the survivors are : Glenner, Gallen H. Elvessa, Josè , Benjamin, Robert, Maggio, Lois, Whittier and Catherine . Our subject is prominently identified with the Republican Party and its councils . He is a member of Athelstan Commandery at Danville, Illinois.

Mr. Taylor is endowed with a keen, resolute nature, and by prompt, systematic methods and other excellent business habits , has accumulated a valuable property and is one of the moneyed men of Catlin Township. He is a man of earnest religious feelings and in him the Cumberland Presbyterian Church has one of its most active workers and influential members, he having united with it early in life and for twenty years or more he has been an Elder . He interests himself in Sunday School and has been a Superintendent .

JOEL ACREE *

Mr. Acree , his father and family, arrived in this County in 1829 , and made a location in Catlin Township, coming direct from the state of Alabama . His father at once bought one hundred and thirty acres of raw land on which they immediately built a cabin , and the next season broke and fenced six acres . The succeeding year they managed to put into cultivation an additional thirty acres. Then they considered themselves in a fair way to become farmers, though living was hard and prices of all kinds of produce was very low. Corn could not be cashed at 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ cents per bushel ; shoes had to be procured by home manufacture, and nearly all kinds of clothing obtained in the same manner. Milling was more difficult on account of long distances and unbridged streams , than a trip would now be (1875) to the state of New York considering our present facilities of travel and commerce. When a boy, Mr. Acree has often taken a single sack of corn on horse-back as far as ten and sometimes fifteen miles in order to obtain a little meal for immediate family use.

For a number of years after the death of his father, who died in 1835 , Mr. Acree continued to reside with his mother and the family ; filling, to the best of his ability, the position naturally devolving upon him the eldest son.

In 1848 he took unto himself a wife, the object of his choice being Elvess Yount (Yunt), daughter of William and Catherine Sacra Yunt, old settlers of Catlin Township. Some of his brothers and sisters by this time were grown up and married off . Mr. Acree bought out their interests in the home estate, the mother and the younger children continuing to reside with him on the farm . He continued afterwards to purchase interests of the heirs until he became the sole owner and proprietor, plus adding to it, until the original farm now embraces 485 acres of fine and well improved land. Besides this, he is the owner of 385 acres of valuable land in this county as well as 160 acres in Oregon County, Missouri.

Mr. Acree is to be congratulated on his past success, and it is but just to add that in a large measure he has been by the judicious help and cooperation of a noble and self-denying wife, who has not only saved her husband's hard earnings, but has materially from time to time added thereto.

Two children only are spared to them as the fruits of their happy marriage , viz: Mrs. Mary C. (Thomas A.) Taylor, and Miss Mattie , a young lady with them at home.

In regard to ancestry , Mr. Acree's information is somewhat limited . William, his paternal grandfather , was of English descent , and was born in either North Carolina or Virginia . He finally settled in Kentucky and there died in Wayne County after raising seven children. Elphrain, Mr. Acree's father , was raised in that state , and was there married to a Miss Mary Wann , a lady of Scotch ancestry . Before moving to Alabama there were born William, Elizabeth, Joel , Ruth, Braxton , and John W. later born in Alabama. The remainder of the family are natives of Illinois . Five are yet surviving : Mr. Acree (Joel) , Braxton, Matilda

 the wife of Harrison Wright , Elizabeth, the wife of Asaph Butler , and John . Prudence, formerly the wife of William Hardin, Mary A. , Melinda J. , Eveline, Emerson , Ruth, formerly the wife of James Rivens , and afterwards of John Carp or , and William, the eldest are dead.
